STURDAY, MAY 6, 1865.

A Plea of "Not Guilty," The telegraph has informed us that Beverly Tucker and W. C. Cleary, two of the rebel refugees in Canada for whose arrest President Johnson has offered a reward, have published letters denying that they had any part or lot in the assessination of the President. The rebel General Ewell, following the same line of defense, has written to General Grant expressing virtuous horror at the crime-a letter which is "concurred in" by two rebel Major Generals and a dozen Brigadiers, all of them, be it noted, at present paroled prisoners in our hands. We are by no means surprised at these denials. During the last fortnight, if these gentlemen have read the Northern papers or talked with Northern men, they have probably got some idea of the temper of the nation on this subject. They begin to understand that the people regard the murder of the President as the culminstion of the great crime of treason, and that a certain and terrible fate awaits all its authors, instigators and abettors. Under these circumstances we should wonder very much if these Canadian rebels, who are liable at any time to be delivered up to our authorities as common criminals, and these rebel officers, who are already in our power, should not make every effort to clear themselves from suspicion of participation in or sympathy with this terrible

These devials amount simply to the pleaof "Not Guilty" which a prisoner makes when arraigned for trial. They can have no more effect upon the mind of a candid person than that plea has upon the sentence of a jury. These men are arraigned before the whole civilized world and before the judgment of history as promoters and sympathizers with murder. Whether guilty or innocent, what more natural course is there for them than to protest that they are free from guilt? Mosntime, outside of the facts in possession of the Government which have led to the offering of a reward for the capture of some of these men, there are strong ressons for utterly disbelieving their declarstions of innovence. In the first place, it should never be forgotten that they are guilty of the greatest crime known to history and law. They are traitors, every m n of them-traitors to the best Government ever known among men. They have conducted for four years a bloody war of rebellion. Atrocities only second in infamy to the monstrous nurder of the President have marked their conduct of it from the beginning. In the South, Ewell, and men like him, have superintended and directed such infamies as the massacre of a surrendered garrison at Fort Pillow, the mining of Libly prison, the outrages on the body of gallant young Dahlgree, the burning of Union homesteads and the scalping of Union citizens throughout the border states, and the starvation and murder of Union prisoners in Southern charnel houses. In Canada, Beverly Tucker and men like him, acting under instructions from Richmond, have plotted such nefarious projects as the Philo Parsons piracy, the robbery and murder at St. Adans, and the burning of New York and his Cabinet never entered our thoughts. city. Is it likely that men whose souls are in horror at a scheme against the life of the "Illinois spe"-as they called him-President Lincoln? Or are their protests tions of innocence to be made much account of in determining the question of

There is little doubt but that New Hampshire, Iowa, Oregon and California, will seen follow in the same direction. The assent of but one State will then be wanting to make the great amendment the law of the land. Unless Kentucky reconsiders her action of last winter and falls into line with the other loyal States, we shall have to wait until one of the seceded States is so far reconstructed that it can adopt the amendment. Under present circumstances it seems highly probable that within a twelve month North Carolina will be give the final ratification to the great

Many thought that in no other place had the arrangements been so thoughtfully made, and were so peculiarly appropriate. The population of the city, swelled for the day by perhaps 40,000 from a distance, vied with each other in all sorts of testimonials suitable to the ocession. Fifty private excrisges were ten ered by their owners for the use of the scort. Two hundred leading citizens, or-capized into ten reliefs of two hours each watched by the corpse. The colored population, including two odges of "Free and Accipted Masons," and other associations, were in the body of the procession, and passed in their turn through the psvilion. In the evening, Gov. Brough, whose residence is in Cleveland, received at his house the Congressional Committee, the Delegation from Illinois, the Military Guard of Honor, and others who accompany the Juneral. Altogether, Cleveland, for her beautiful streets, her hospitable citizens, and the foneral honors she paid to Lincoln, has left an enviable impression upon the whole party.

George D. Prentice and the Assassings

Some weeks ago George D. Prentice predicted in the Louisville Journal that the rebels were contemplating a scheme which would astonish the world." Since the ssazzination several papers have referred, to the prediction in connection with it Mr. Prentice explains himself as follows: What we know or have known we can say in very few words. A distinguished man of Kentucky stated to a partner of urs (many weeks after our 're Richmond.) that be know that the Confederates contemplated a movement or an sction (we didn't say a " noof") that would startle the nation. He said that he had no right to say anything further about it. Of ourse our partner could tell us nothing in regard to it, for he knew acthing, B we simply stated (what we thought might be interesting to corrountry, and possibly for its good) that the rebels were contemplating something that would amany the Harris.

The Legislature of Tennessee having authorized the Governor to offer a reward of $5,000 for the capture of Isham G. Harris, the rebel pretender to the Governorship of Tennessee, Brownlow has issued a characteristic proclamation to that effect. His description of Harris is especially pointed and Brownlowish. Here it is :-

"This culprit, Harris, is about five feet ten inches bigh, weighs about one hundred and forty-five pound-, and is about liftyfive years of age. His complexion is sallow-his eyes are dark and penetrating-s rfect index to the heart of a traitor with the roowl and frown of a demon resting upon his brow. He chews give the final ratification to the great tobacco rapidly, and is inordinately fond of liquor. In his moral structure, he is an unscrupulous man-steeped to the nose and chin in personal and political profitgacy-now about lost to all sense or honor at d shame-with a heart reckies of social duty, and fatally bent on muschief.

"If captured, he will be found lurking in the rebel strongholds of Mississippi, Alabams or Goorgia, and in female society alleging with the sheep-faced modesty of a virtuous man, that it is not a wholesome state of public sentiment, or of taste, that forbids an indiscriminate mixing together of married men and women. Yesterday we published an account of the progress of the conspiracy against the life of the President and his Cabinet, condensed from the New York World, We append the following additional facts, from the New York Herald:

THE PLIGHT OF BOOTH AND HABOLIL It seems that after crossing the Potomac boy were fed by a woman living near the shore, who, however, was ignorant of their true character. To her they gave the bost in which they crossed the river. They were then taken by an old man named Bryans to the house of a Doctor Stewart, who refused to hear their story or to have snything to do with them.

Brysnt then took them to the "free felers," W. Lucas', about a quarter of a mile from Stewart's. This was, as near as Lucas could judge, about midnight. It was long after he had gone to bed. He usually goes to bed about ten o'clock. They stated in reply to his interrogations, that they were Confederate soldiers on parole and wanted a conveyance to go to Fredericksburg. He aid that he wanted to use his horses on his farm and could not send them at all. This appears to have been Booth. All this time cas was inside the bouse, fearful, at the ate hour, to open his door to strangers. amble as was his dwelling. A peremptory demand was then made to open the door of take the consequences. Lucas, who was in his house with his wife, a free c lored vomen, and bis little children, some whom were sick, then opened the door. The two, Both and Harold, walked in. They said they were sent there by Dr. Stewart to obtain a conveyance or wagon to forward them to Fredericksburg. Lucas gain told the parties that he wanted to se his horses on his farm and he could not by any possibility spare them. At this juncture Booth, "the lame man," as Lucas save, pulling aside his cost and displaying his arms (two revolvers, a long intle, and a carbine in his hand) said: Fellow, do you know we are some of Mosby's men? We offer to pay you for your accommodation, and if you will not accept pay we will take your horses and your wagon, and we will compel you to ake us where we want to go." to did. They agreed to pay him twentytive dollars to convey them to Port Rayal, on the Happahannock. They then made the poor colored woman get up and cook them some supper, and remain in his shanty till about day break. and his wife sat up all night, fearful of their lives. In answer to question how he got his leg broke, he said he was trying to get away from thegunboats and had fatien

GOING TO BOWLING GREEN. The conversation between the paties at Lucas' house during their stay was of a general character. They represented themselves as brothers. One was address-ed as "Johnny," the other as "David." The colored boy, Charley, ron of Lucas, says that during the trip he was frequently urged to "hurry uo." Both seemed much fatigued, and laid down in the bot-tom of the wagon and slept t intervals. They arrived at Port Conway, opposite ort Royal, on the Bappahanneck, oon, on Monday, the 24th. The ferryboat was on the opposite side of the river, and Harold bailed it. While waiting Harold went to the house of a Mr. Bollins, a flaborman, and asked him how much he would charge to take him and his brother, who was lame, to Orange Court House. Rollins said to did not know the way to Orange Court House very well, but would take them as far as Bowling Green. He aid he would take them in his wagon for ten dollars in gold. This Booth said was too much, but he would pay ten dollars in greenbacks. Hollins said he would have go and at end to his nets, which he had st put out on the river, and when he ame back would give them an answer. When he returned he finally agreed to take them to Bowling Green for ten dol-lars in greenbacks. He went again to at-tend his flish nets before putting the horses in the team, and during his absence hree robel so diers came up to the ferry banding, with the intention of crossing as soon as the boat came over the river. There was then a long at dapparently exetting conversation between all the parties.

Booth, Harold and the three soldiers. after which Harold came over to Mr. Rol-lins' house and told him that they had met some of their friends, who sgreed to go with them to Bowling Green. There being only three horses, they agreed to ride in turn. Harold apologized to Rol-line for not taking the team, as engaged. follies told him it made no diffe Harold then copied some paper which he took from Booth, and returned to him when, as the ferryboat had arrived, they all started over the Rappahannock togeth er. Before they started Booth was sitting on a stoop near Rollins' house, and said he did not want to go to Fredericksburg, as the damned Yankoes were too thick there or him; and in allusion to people over the Maryland side of the Potonisc, he said they were "a damned set of scaliawaga," for they charged him one hundred and fifty ioliars for a small skill, which was not rorth half that sum.

AT GARREST'S. The new companions of Booth were some officers of Moseby's guerrillas. They took Booth and Harold with them on the road from Port Boyal to Bowling Green, and after several unsuccessful efforts to ge 3 me family to harbor them for a day or two, at last left Booth at Garrett's, while Harold went on to Bowling Green. On Tuesday Harold returned and informed Booth that the cavalry were after them, on which they took to the woods. In the evening they rened and got permusion to steep in the of Garrett's boys, lest they should steal the horses. Here they were caught soon after. A second expedition was sent out on Saturday night last, which arrived at Garrott's be released to come to them. He treated him as a neighbor would do a friend of a neighbor. The result is PROBENG THE PLOT. The public have no idea of the extent to which the authorities have probed this plot. The accounts published give but a faint ides. They know how the chief actor in the tragedy has been tracked and followed through Maryland and hunted down in Virginia, and how he died like a dog; but this is but one portion of the whole affair, but one branch of the stream which has been gone over. In almost every respect equal success has crowned the efforts of the authorities; and, in fact, in some instances, with much greater suc cess as the public will see in the due course of time. The persons taken into custody as participators, aiders and abettors, or in some way accomplices to the tragic deed, are: umbered almost byhundred. There are still a few at large; until they are captured it will not be the part of wisdom to publish in detail the developments in full which have transpired.

THE CONSPIRACY ORGANIZED IN AUGUST LAST.

One thing is certain, that the parties who ere to execute the attocious deed which has filled the land with mourning, commenced holding their meetings in Washington as long ago as August, 1864. They were bound together by one of the strengest oaths ever taken by mortals, and every person who was admitted to the secret was bound to remain faithful to the end at the penalty of death-his life to be taken one of his associated. Many of the confederates were not taken fully into the secret, and even those who were, were allowed to approach it only by degrees as tested. The authorities have been fortuate enough to ascertain where, when and how often the conspirators held their meetings, and have taken into custody the people who occupied the houses where they met. The number which were taken into the secret before the consummation terrified the poor colored man that he of the deed was no large that it is astonishhought it best to strike a bargain, which | ing that some one of the number did not SECESSIONISTS CHEERFUL.

It is now generally noticed that several of the secession sympathizing residents of Washington were in excellent spirits on the morning of the 14th ultimo, so much so as to attract the attention of many of the loyal citizens There were two or three persons who gave it as their opinion that Booth had some dastardly plot on hand; but all such were laughed at as disoverers of mares' nests, and falled to notify the authorities. But as soon as soon ratio deed was done, and Mr. Lincoln had creathed his last, there were numerous parties who had circumstantial evidence bearing upon it.

BOW THE DETAILS OF THE CONSPIRACY haps they would shoot both him and his wife, steal the horres and decamp. Just at WERE OBTAINED.

It seems that about three weeks before the plans were put into execution one of the parties revolted at the part of the work which the leaders had allotted to him on the eventful night, and at once manifested Lucas said they might "go round by the mill," so Charley, a colored lad, abolit a desire to back out. He was, however resighteen years of age, took them round by to bring him up to bis work. But the more he thought of it the more he became alarmed at the fearful proposition of their hollish schemes. After several days parleving he succeeded in getting the co of his associates to relieve him from all furcome little pride. I hate to blame you for ther connection with them, on the condiyour want of hospitality. You know your | thou that he should have the city and not own affairs. I was sick and tired, with a return for sixty days. He left the city, croken leg, and in need of medical satvice, and was somewhere within the limits of would not have turned a dog from my the Army of the Potomac when the news door in such a condition. However, you came there of the assassination of the was kind enough to give us something to l'resident. He immediately repaired to ner in which a kindness is extended that taken before the authorities he made a full reward for Booth, and also rewards for Atzerot and Harold, were based upon the confessions of this prisoner. THE NUMBER ENGAGED IN EXECUTING THE PLUT is much larger than has been generally supposed. Besides Booth and his accomices in and around the theatre, tho assssinator of Seward, and Atzerot at the Kirkwood, there were a number engaged in cutting the telegraph wires leading from the War Department, and still another set endeavoring to divert the attention of the authorities from the fleeing culprids. It sppears that at precisely ten minutes past ten there were twenty-two wires, leading from the War Office in different directions and connecting with the fortifications and outposts, cut. These wires having been cut at a considerable distance from each other, together with the simultaneousness of this work, shows very plainly that a number of men were engaged in it; and it is now believed that there were twenty-two men appointed to do the work. The time at which this was accomplished furnishes beyond a doubt the hour which the President was assassinated, which heretofore has been stated all the way from half past nine to half-past ten. It probably did not vary much from ten sent a motly crew, from the wild and ex-centric actor down to a mere carpenter, including the Pennsylvania avenue dandy, lockade runners, and men with their heads silvered over with the snows of many winters, and rattle-beaded youths hardly out of their teens. The testimony already obtained is so straightforward and onvincing that there is no doubt but at east twenty-oge, if not twenty-three, per-ons will suffer the penalty of death. There is hardly one chance in a thousand that they can occape—the evidence is so damnable against them. It is said that here are some three persons confederates in the conspiracy who had been pardoned by the President, and escaped death by his tender heart and humane feelings.

At least, the evidence obtained thus far shows that the scheme only contemplated the assassination of President Linuoln, Vice-President Johnson and Secretary Seward-no more, and no less.

There is no truth in the reports that the ould be assassin of Mr. Seward has tried to beat his brains out in his prison. He has remained silent and morose ever since he has been in custody, and has not asked a single question about his arrest, or why he is confined. He is said to be a fine formed and athletic person, and takes his for finement in dogged silence.

THE CARPESTEE who fixed the box in the theatre has also been found. It is said that he took charge of Booth's borse early in the evening on the night of the tragedy, and at the proper time led it into the alley at the rear of the theatre, and emploped a negro boy, called 'Peanut John' to hold it near the door and close to a box, so that the animal could be easily mounted, and then fixed the door leading to the rear of the stage so that there would be no delay in Booth's exit. This person is said to be the same one who built Booth's stable in the alley and also the carpenter employed to do work in the theatre, such as putting up new scc-
